Back to school!

Dear students, dear friends,

L'ÉCOLE, School of Jewelry Arts is very pleased to welcome you with an exclusive program: to celebrate the start of the school year, we offer you during a limited period from September to November a selection of 19 courses at the preferential price of 50€ each, and some of them scheduled at the end of the day in order to fit everyone's agenda.

L'ÉCOLE is including you in its fight against the school dropout issue, by donating the totality of the funds collected through your registrations during this period to a charity working for the educational support of young people.

The start of the school year will also be devoted to gemstones and minerals with three beautiful exhibitions to discover.

In Paris, the new « Jean Vendome, Artist Jeweler » exhibition will bring light to the universe of a true pioneer of modern jewelry, lover of minerals - which he never ceased to celebrate throughout his creations.

The « Gems » exhibition is organized by Van Cleef & Arpels and the Muséum National d'Histoire Naturelle. Throughout its duration, L'ÉCOLE is co-organizing several workshops for children and Evening Conversations.

Simultaneously, in Hong Kong, the second permanent campus of L'ÉCOLE presents « Discover the Gemstones, Ruby & Sapphire », visitors to the exhibition will embark on a surprising journey to the heart of gemstones. Thanks to photomicrography and microscope observations, discover the secret inner beauty of these precious gemstones.

In the following pages, find out more about the entire range of our activities for the upcoming months: a very rich program to discover, learn and wonder!

Jean Vendome Artist Jeweler

from October 8th to December 18th

Jean Vendome, whose real name was Ohan Tuhdarian, created his first jewelry collection in 1950, and worked tirelessly right up until his death in 2017. His multifaceted talent combined eccentric and surrealist elements with contemporary graphic design, giving his jewels a refined and intricately designed appearance.

From October 8 to December 18, L'ÉCOLE, School of Jewelry Arts will bring to light the universe of this adventurous creator, who, as a true artist, set about creating his own world. He bucked fashion trends with his own personal and pioneering style. Simple yet sophisticated, powerful yet intricate, eccentric yet well-designed, constructed and deconstructed, Jean Vendome's jewelry is always emotional. In order to be appreciated fully, it must be loved and understood, as it is the jewelry that chooses the wearer.

A special issue of the magazine Connaissance des Arts, dedicated to the exhibition, will be given to all visitors to guide them during their visit.

Practicalities

Exhibition from October 8th to December 18th, 2020
Tuesday-Saturday / 1pm - 7pm
Free admission by reservation only on: www.lecolevancliefarpels.com

Jean Vendome in the 1980s.
The Jean Vendome Archives

The private collections on display will emphasize the visionary side of his creations. One hundred and thirty pieces will be on show, including Aléna Caillois' wonderful necklace. The retrospective will also feature pieces from public collections at institutions including the Musée des Arts Décoratifs in Paris, as well as the sword of the academician Roger Caillois, on special loan from the Musée des Confluences in Lyon.

The exhibition will showcase a wide range of his pieces. Visitors will be able to retrace his innovative exploration of shapes and his avant-garde approach to changing scale and traditions in order to adapt his jewelry for the modern and liberated women of the 1970s. Jean Vendome's prolific creations resonate like a poetic and meaningful echo of the major artistic movements of the second half of the 20th century.

From kinetic pop art to the dream of the Apollo 13 space mission, his jewelry pieces evolved into Constellations, Aurore Boréale and Espace during the 1970s. The geometric shapes of the skyscrapers in Les Tours betray his passion for urban architecture and the race upwards. The 1980s were the years of "imaginary walks", where he played on the mimetic analogy of agates, fragments of eternity, and matte and polished gold jewels with "phantom" quartz, rutilated quartz and dendritic agate. The 1990s are marked by the use of ever stronger colors, which Jean Vendome called his "vagrant" or "wild" colors. It was a time of escapism and dreaming.

A sculptor in search of fascinating inclusions, radiance, materials and colors, Jean Vendome, alchemist and jeweler, will never cease to amaze you.

EXHIBITION

« Gems »

organized by the Muséum national d'Histoire naturelle and Van Cleef & Arpels

In collaboration with Van Cleef & Arpels, the « Gems » exhibition immerses visitors in several fields which are closely connected and yet rarely brought together: mineralogy, gemology and the art of jewelry making. Diamonds, rubies, emeralds, aquamarines, turquoise etc... Extracted from the depths of the earth, coveted and sought after for thousands of years, gems (precious stones worked on by human hands) have always been considered as instruments of power and objects of seduction. Furthermore, since the 18th century, they have become the subject of various scientific studies.

EXPERT'S PORTRAIT

François Farges,

Doctor in Fundamental Geochemistry, Professor at the Muséum national d'Histoire naturelle & Member of the Institut Universitaire de France

A word about your professional career?

After completing a thesis in geochemistry at the University of Paris VII, I was a post-doctoral researcher at Stanford University where I worked on the atomic structure of certain minerals including rubies and emeralds. After acting as lecturer at the University of Marne la Vallée, I became a Research Director at the Ecole des Mines de Paris, then a professor at Stanford University and an Honorary Member of the Institut Universitaire de France. Since 2006, I have been a professor at the National Muséum of Natural and Scientific History in charge of the French national gems collection.

You and L'ÉCOLE, School of Jewelry Arts?

Since 2015, L'ÉCOLE, School of Jewelry Arts became interested in our work on Louis XIV's large blue diamond, for which we received the prestigious Gübelin Prize in 2010. After a few talks presented within the framework of L'ÉCOLE, we responded to their request for collaboration for the Van Cleef & Arpels exhibition in Singapore - "The Art and Science of Gems" - but also co-published on Tavernier's diamonds in 2017, a project sponsored by L'ÉCOLE. Since that time, I have been a member of the Scientific Council of L'ÉCOLE.

Your next project or the project you dream of working on?

I am completing various projects, including exhibitions and written works under embargo because we are often copied: in fact, gemology at the Muséum, the oldest laboratory in the world in this field, lacks resources today. In the meantime, we are finishing a major exhibition "Gems" which will take place in the Jardin des Plantes in Paris from September 2020 with an exceptional contribution from Van Cleef & Arpels as well as Mines ParisTech, the Paris Legion of Honor Museum and L'ÉCOLE, which will take part in four joint talks linked to this exhibition which is rich in related side events.

STUDENT'S PORTRAIT

How did you discover L'ÉCOLE, School of Jewelry Arts?

Not long after I moved to Paris, I visited "la Biennale des Antiquaires", the 2014 edition, where almost every famous High Jewelry Maison was represented. Right after, I said to myself that I should take advantage of living in Paris to follow my passion, as I realized I have always loved gemstones and the jewelry universe.

When I looked on Google I found L'ÉCOLE, and it stood out from the others thanks to its mission: "to share the culture of jewelry". I decided to attend an introductory course and it was love at first sight!

"To attend courses at L'ÉCOLE is something I find very fulfilling, which changed the way I look at Art and allowed me to meet wonderful people"

Which courses did you take, and which one did you prefer?

My very first class was "First Steps into the World of Jewelry", followed by the courses of the theme "The World of Gemstones" and the course "Trying out the Jeweler's Techniques". The two classes on diamonds were my favorite. The teaching methods are excellent: I was able to observe diamonds, compare them to other colorless stones, see the difference in terms of brilliance and discover what we call the "fires" of this unique stone.

What did the different courses you have taken brought you?

It was a very positive experience thanks to high quality teaching methods and a warm welcome. I also liked the different activities offered by L'ÉCOLE: from courses to talks to exhibitions. To attend courses at L'ÉCOLE is something I find very fulfilling and which allows me not only to learn more about the jewelry world, but also about the French culture and history. It also changed the way I look at Art (I now like to observe the jewelry in paintings, which is something I didn't do before) and allowed me to meet wonderful people. Above all, it's a way for me to dedicate time to my passion, to culture and to myself.
